Cellboost: emergency juice for your mobile

By Dave Carter

Truly there are few things more annoying in the modern day to day world than realizing there's no juice left on your phone as you go to make an important call. Your lifeline to the world becomes nothing more than an expensive lump of plastic and circuitry with about as much use as a sundial in the night time. Unless of course...

...you have a Cellboost disposable battery charger! The pocket sized accessory plugs into your phone and, in merely seconds, fills it with power. Using 'quick-charge' protocol it'll give you another battery life to make a call in about 2 minutes. Completely self contained the unit needs no extra wires or plugs and can even be used on more than one occasion.

Available for most popular phones, the Cellboost costs £5. There's also an iPod version available for £6.
